

Know Your LRC Student Workers

Sheila Riehl

When one of the library's student workers graduated in December, we needed to find a replacement for the spring semester. That's when Sheila came on board the LRC. A freshman studying autobody tech, she's also a very talented singer - as anyone who's heard her rendition of the Star Spangled Banner can attest. Her band, Delta Jelly, plays locally; check out their website <http://home.dejazzd.com/deltajelly/> to find when and where they play next.

Sheila's also very involved in the Accessing Careers in Technology Program, the mentoring program run by the Women's Center. When asked to describe her involvement, she replied, "It's awesome", and told how the girls learned to fix patches in dry-wall and hook up a thermostat.

Sheila is originally from Gordonville and now lives in Lancaster city. It was interesting to learn that her parents were both raised Amish. In fact, one of her mother's favorite things to say to her is "Aren't you glad we didn't stay Amish?"

Thank you! Thank you!

The LRC extends its thanks to Andy Tompos for donating a series of math tapes to the LRC. Titled "Intermediate Algebra", these tapes accompany the textbook and class of the same name taught on campus. They are an excellent resource that can be used to reinforce some difficult mathematical concepts. The "Intermediate Algebra" tapes are also available in the Math Lab.

Look for the LRC's display on Women's History Month coming in March.

New Longer Hours for LRC

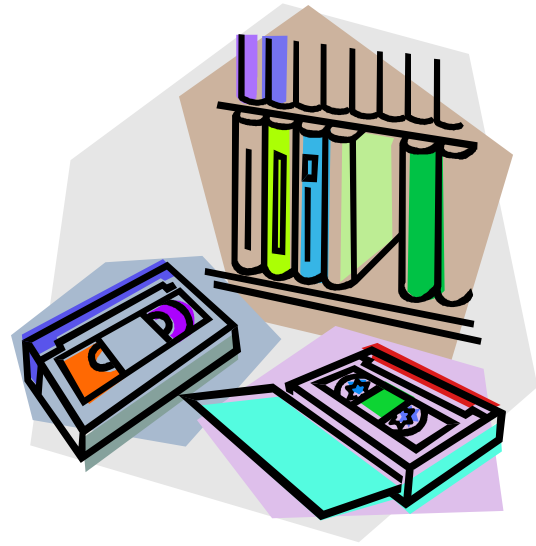

Beginning with the Spring semester of 2004, the LRC has begun opening a half hour earlier. The new hours for the library mean that the doors now open at 7:00 in the morning. This change was brought about by library administration because of a real need expressed by the student community. Often, students would like to check their email or get some last-minute work done on a project before classes start. Now it should be a little bit easier for those "morning people" to get access to library resources.

Videos Moved to New, Easy-Access Location

There's been some re-arranging going on over at the LRC. The staff has taken some videos from the reserved area behind the desk and placed them out on the shelves adjacent to the circulation desk. The types of videos that were moved would be classified as entertainment as opposed to the technical/ educational videos in the collection that will still be housed in the reserved area.

The reasons for this arrangement are two-fold: hopefully, these videos will circulate more once students are able to browse through them and, also, the additional space was needed in the video room as our collection of technical/ educational videos expands.

Movie Ideas for This Week-End

They may not be the most recent releases, but sometimes you just feel like watching more of a classic. Or maybe it's an earlier release that you missed the first time around....here are some titles that might catch your interest.

Did you see Bowling for Columbine on campus for Ms. Meley's class? We have the earlier movie by Moore that put him on the map—Roger & Me.

Are you in the mood for a horror flick? We've got Children of the Corn, The Fly, and Rosemary's Baby.

For comedy we have Critical Condition with Richard Pryor, Stakeout, Ghost, and Ghostbusters.

If you pick your movies by leading man, then we have Mel Gibson (Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome), Arnold (Predator), Clint Eastwood (Sudden Impact), Paul Newman (Cool Hand Luke), and Harrison Ford (Witness, Top Gun, and Raiders of the Lost Ark).

Other oldies but goodies include:

Alien
Casablanca
Excalibur
Hoosiers
Raging Bull
Scarface
Akira Kurosawa's Seven Samurai

Our goal is to help you find the information you need at a time and place that's convenient for you. Our promise is to help you understand when information is needed, recognize where it is, and master methods to retrieve it.

Featured Web Site - Search Engine Watch

<http://www.searchenginewatch.com>

Search Engine Watch is the Web site created by Danny Sullivan, an Internet consultant and journalist. Begun as a research project in 1995, the site has emerged as the number one source of quality information on search engines and search engine news. The Internet is still an ever-changing landscape; new search engines use different technologies to index the Web while other search engines lose popularity and are left by the wayside. Search Engine Watch keeps track of all the changes taking place in your computer so that you can take advantage of them and perform better searches.

In addition to reporting on what's new, Sullivan et. al. offer tips to search engine users on how to search better. Web masters and site owners would be particularly interested in the sections on how search engines rank pages in terms of relevancy. Both search engine users and web masters can keep up with industry developments by subscribing to the free newsletters – either Search Day, a daily newsletter or The Search Engine Report, which is monthly. Another newsletter, The Search Engine Update, is twice-monthly and is available with a paid membership.
